Lake Region Plans Glorious Fourth

PREPARE TO ACCOMMODATE 4TH CROWDS

Many Private Families Are Sharing Homes With Tourists.

NEWS HAS LIST OF ROOMS

All hotels and resorts in the lake district are preparing for the largest crowd over the holidays in recent history. Many families are opening their homes to the "over the Fourth" pleasure seekers. The Antioch News has on hand a list of rooms that are available. If you have friends or relatives who cannot be accommodated, call at our office and we can probably place them.

Renchan's Resort

Renchan's Summer Resort at Round Lake opened June 23, with a large delegation from the neighboring towns. This event marked the opening of Mr. Renchan's new pavilion. The pavilion presented a sight which will long be remembered. Through the efforts of decorators the pavilion reminded one of a sylvan bower because of its canopy of natural leaves. This together with the new lighting system gave the hall a decided outdoor effect. Every one spent an enjoyable evening and many were the praises concerning Mr. Renchan's pavilion and good music.

Mr. Renchan has provided a complete and interesting program for the 2d, 3d, and 4th of July. Base ball games are scheduled for every afternoon. Boating, golf, trap shooting, bathing and dancing afternoon and evening are the events of the holidays.

Mr. Renchan has a surprise in store for his patrons and friends on their next visit to Round Lake. The hotel has been remodeled. Sixteen rooms have been added also rooms with bath. A new dancing pavilion has been completed also a new bath house built to accommodate one hundred and fifty persons. In addition to this is a new eight room bungalow equipped with all modern conveniences. For bathers and boating parties a new dock and diving float have been erected.

Twin Lakes Pavilion

Twin Lakes, Wis., will witness the opening of the largest dancing pavilion in the state Saturday evening, July 2, at 8 p. m. Carl E. Rademacher, the proprietor promises a great surprise to his patrons. Considerable effort on Mr. Rademacher's part has finally resulted in one of the most remarkable lighting effects ever produced in a pavilion. The management announces that there will be no suggestive dancing allowed.

Charles Ford of Geneva Junction is in charge of the soda fountain and ice cream parlor.

Mr. Rademacher is looking forward to a large crowd Saturday evening and says that the floor will be in excellent condition. Schleyer's five-piece orchestra will furnish the music.

The Twin Lakes Dancing Pavilion will be open every night of the week all summer, with a Sunday afternoon matinee from 3 to 5.

Sylvan Beach Hotel

At Rothe's Sylvan Beach Hotel is the finest dance hall in Lake county and over the holidays will be dancing each afternoon and evening. Percy Rowell's orchestra will furnish the music. A great feature of the Sylvan Beach resort is the fact that Mr. Rothe has unlimited automobile parking space and can accommodate over 400 machines.

Channel Lake Pavilion

Winch's Channel Lake pavilion opened its regular season, June 25, with a larger and more attractive program than ever. Among the new features are motor boat service, lockers for bathers, check rooms and enlarged dancing floor. There will be a dance every evening and Sunday afternoon throughout the season.

Dressel House

Dressel House, on Lake Marie is preparing for a record crowd over the Fourth and is putting on a special dinner. This resort has always been the fisherman's most popular resort.

Communication

(By R. F. T.)

When the Creator had made all good things there was still some dirty work to do, so He made the beasts, reptiles and poisonous insects, and when He had finished He had some scraps that were too bad to put into the rattlesnake, the hyena, the scorpion and skunk, so He put all these together, covered it with suspicion, wrapped it with jealousy, marked it with a yellow streak and called it a KNOCKER.

This product was so fearful to contemplate He had to make something to counteract it, so He took a sunbeam and put in it the heart of a child, the brain of a man, wrapped these in elvish pride, covered it with brotherly love, gave it a mask of velvet and a grasp of steel, and called it a BOOSTER; made him a lover of fields, flowers and manly sports, a believer in quality and justice, and ever since these two were, mortal man has had the privilege of choosing his associates.

TO SELL BLUFF LAKE TRACT

The Woodland Park Sub-division association, an organization of local business men, including N. E. Sibley, G. M. Goltzner, Henry Herman and J. E. Brook, have decided to open the tract of land situated on the north side of Bluff Lake.

This property, heavily wooded, is said to be one of the most attractive spots of the lake region.

As the sale of this property will commence at a time when thousands of visitors from the city will be in the vicinity it is expected that will soon be disposed of as this site is only composed of twenty eight lots.

Greenbay Road Closed for Reconstruction

As the paving contractors now are working on the Greenbay Road, all the roads running east and west to it, have been closed. The only highways on which you now can get across Greenbay road is at Washington street, Waukegan and 22nd street, North Chicago. Farmers who have needed the road are forced to drive through their fields to get to town.

This "blockade" will last thirty days, the contractors explain, for within thirty days from the date the stretch of concrete road on Greenbay from Washington to 22nd street will have been completed.

Because the state law says that a road cannot be closed longer than thirty days by contractors doing paving, they will have to rush things on this job because they have marked off quite a distance as the first section to be paved.

Picnic at Rosecrans' Has Many Features

Racing, games, singing and speaking will be some of the features at Rosecrans'. Music will be furnished by a band of home talent and a baseball game in the afternoon will add to a long list of picnic events.

Entertainment and motion pictures in the evening.

Ames grove has always been a popular picnic grounds and a large gathering will be on hand to "put it over big."

The management is planning a chicken pie dinner.

Special Music at St. Ignace's Church

Next Sunday Mr. Fred Fuller of the Atonement, Chicago, will play the organ. There will also be special music. Choral Morning Prayer will be rendered. Every one is invited to attend, especially the visitors over the Fourth of July. The services will be patriotic in character.

Meet Harris Billards

Next Sunday Antioch's baseball team will cross bats with the strong Harris Billards of Kenosha.

The Billards is one of the strongest teams in the amateur ranks of Wisconsin and a good game is assured.

How Do They Get That Way?

While "Ye Editor" was standing in front of one of our popular ice cream emporiums shortly after dinner Tuesday evening enjoying a cigar, he overheard the remarks of a middle aged woman returning from a shopping tour in Chicago. Upon meeting a young woman, the following conversation went on like this:

"Why, hello Mrs. —," said the younger woman.

"Good evening," returned the shopper, "do you know I've had an awful day today? I went to town to get some blue voile to make a dress and I saw an ad. in the paper for white canvas shoes at $1.88, and I thought I might get a pair and when I got there I couldn't find any I liked for less than $3.50. I did not mind that, but when I opened my package on the train to show my voile to a friend I was mad through and through to find the cloth an ugly black, and I'm sure Mrs. — that it looked blue under the electric light in —'s department store."

"Ye Editor" strolled back to his typewriter and is still wondering whether the local merchants haven't a supply on hand to satisfy this woman's taste or whether she is a victim of the alluring ads. of the State street department stores.

BANK ROBBER IS IDENTIFIED

John Gilmore, hunted by Sheriff Green for nine months on a charge of having robbed the Antioch state bank last August and escaping with $10,000 worth of Liberty bonds and other securities, in the safety deposit vault of the bank, was identified Monday in Judge MacDonald's court in Chicago, where he was being held on a minor charge and Deputy Sheriff Griffin took him to Waukegan to face the charges of burglary and larceny.

Gilmore was indicted by the Lake county grand jury last fall but was not apprehended. His alleged complicity in the robbery was traced through the sale of Liberty bonds in Chicago. The robbery took place early one morning last August before the arrival of bank officials at their place of business.

He is being held in the county jail in default of $10,000 bonds.

Spain Has 90 Cent Gasoline

During September and October the Ford blast furnaces, Detroit, Mich., shipped to the Ford assembling plant at Cadiz, Spain, 20,000 gallons of benzol. At present gasoline is selling at 90 cents per gallon. Benzol is being shipped there at a maximum cost of 45 cents per gallon. This not only means a 50 per cent in saving in cost, but also a large saving in time and inconvenience in procuring gasoline, as Spain is experiencing an unusual shortage of motor fuels.

A. B. JOHNSON RETIRES FROM JOURNALISM

Will Give His Entire Time to Insurance Business in the Future

LOCAL MAN HIS SUCCESSOR

After twenty years as a newspaper publisher, Mr. A. B. Johnson has given up his interests in journalism and the Antioch News find itself in the hands of a younger generation. John L. Horan, a life long resident of Antioch and formerly of Mr. Johnson's staff and Frank W. Wood, for thirteen years connected with the Evanston News Index, a daily newspaper in Evanston, Ill., have the experience and ability to give its readers a weekly paper of the highest standard. Mr. John A. Woodhead, also of Evanston will take charge of the job printing department.

Under its new management the Antioch News strives to represent all that is highest and best in the community in which it serves. Strives to be clean enough and wholesome enough to merit an undisputed place in the family circle. To that end gruesome descriptions of crime will be excluded from its columns. No advertisements will be accepted whose representations are known to be misleading. No advertising contracts are sought or accepted, the acceptance of which might tend to vitiate, embarrass, impair, or in any way trammel the editorial policy of this paper. The editor, in his particular province, therefore, is supreme, subject to dictation by no one, beholden to no political faction, party boss or corporate interest, amenable only to the claims of rectitude and justice.

The editor will greatly appreciate any items of local interest and as the subscribers and advertisers are the main cogs in the machine of a newspaper, we hope they will do their part in building up the Antioch News to the highest standard of weekly publications.

Copies of the Antioch News frequently come into the hands of many who are not regular readers of the paper. It is not always possible to reach all these personally with a request for their subscription. The publishers will therefore appreciate the spirit of co-operation which may prompt such acquaintance to send in their names unsolicited to be placed on the regular mailing list.

Mr. Johnson has fitted an office at the News plant where he will conduct his insurance business.

Hampshire Singing Orchestra to Appear at Chautauqua Next Month

Get Your Season Ticket Early and Hear This Splendid Company at Our Chautauqua.

Occasionally a company is so much better than other companies in similar lines of work that it can follow the best of all the rest and still create a sensation in each community. Such is the case with the Hampshire Orchestra. Such is one of the spot-light companies which we are to have at our Chautauqua. We never realized how capable they were instrumentally until we heard an orchestra of fine professional men musicians try to play some of the heard music the Hampshire Orchestra plays. And we better appreciated their vocal chorus when we heard a very fine ladies' quartet of standard reputation sing some of the same songs the Hampshire ladies sing. The Hampshire Orchestra is the equal instrumentally of the best of the rest, and vocally is so capable that it sets a standard that will not be excelled by "Singing" orchestras for many years to come. "Singing Orchestra" may come and go but the Hampshire Ladies Singing Orchestra will be remembered by every listener as one of the finest concert organizations ever heard.

But the terrible fangs were never to know her white flesh. Some one had come between. There was no chance to shoot; Whispermouth and the girl were too near together for that. But one course remained; and there was not even time to count the cost. In this most terrible moment of Dan Fallang's life, there was not even an instant's hesitation. He did not know that Whispermouth was wounded. He saw the beast creeping forward in the weird dancing light of the fallen lantern, and he only knew that his flesh, not hers, must resist its rending talons. Nothing else mattered. No other consideration could come between. It was the test; and Dan's instincts prompted coolly and well. He leaped with all his strength. The cougar bounded into his arms, not upon the prone body of the girl. And she opened her eyes to hear a curious thrashing in the pine needles, a strange grim battle that, as the lantern flashed out, was hidden in the darkness.

And that battle, in the far reaches of the Divide, passed into a legend. It was the tale of how Dan Fallang, his gun knocked from his hands as he met the cougar's leap, with his own unaided arms kept the life-giving breath from the animal's lungs and killed him in the pine needles. Claws and fangs and the frenzy of death could not matter at all.

Thus Fallang established before all men his right to the name he bore. And thus he paid one of his debts—life for a life, as the code of the forest has always decreed—and in the fire of danger and pain his metal was tried and proven.

BOOK THREE
The Payment.
CHAPTER I.

The Lennox home, in the wilderness of the Umpqua Divide, looked rather like an emergency hospital for the first few days after Dan's fight with Whispermouth. Its old sounds of laughter and talk were almost entirely lacking. Two injured men and a girl recovering from a nervous collapse do not tend toward cheer.

But the natural sturdiness of all three quickly came to their aid. Of course Lennox had been severely injured by the falling log, and many weeks would pass before he would be able to walk again. He could sit up for short periods, however; and the partial use of one arm; and could propel himself—after the first few weeks—at a snail's pace through the rooms in a rude wheel chair that Bill's ingenuity had contrived. The great livid scratches that Dan bore on his body quickly began to heal; and before a week was done he began to venture forth on the hills again. Snowbird had remained in bed for three days; then she had hopped out, one bright afternoon, swearing never to go back into it again. Evidently the crisp, full air of the mountains had been a nerve tonic for them all.

Of course there had been medical attention. A doctor and a nurse had motored up the day after the accident; the physician had set the bones and departed, and the nurse remained for a week, to see the grizzled mountaineer well on the way of convalescence. But it was an anxious wait, and Lennox's ear was kept constantly in readiness to speed her away in case the snows should start. At last she had left him in Snowbird's hands, and Bill had driven her back to the settlements in his father's car. The day was now cast as to whether or not Dan and the remainder of the family should winter in the mountain. The snow clouds deepened every day, the frost was ever heavier in the dawns, and the road would surely remain open only a few days more.

Once more the three seemingly had the Divide all to themselves. Bert Cranston had evidently deserted his cabin and was working a trap-line on the Umpqua side. The rangers left the little station, all danger of fire past, and went down to their offices in the federal building of one of the little cities below. Because he was worse than useless in the deep snows that were sure to come, one of the ranch hands that had driven up with Bill rode away to the valleys the last of the live stock—the horse that Dan had ridden to Snowbird's defense.

Nothing had been heard of Landy Hildreth, who used to live on the trail to the marsh, and both Lennox and his daughter wondered why. There were also certain officials who had begun to be curious. As yet, Dan had told no one of the grim tale he had made on his return from hunting. And he would have found it an extremely difficult feat to explain.

It all went back to thro' inner springs of motive that few men can see clearly enough within themselves to recognize. Even the first day, when he lay burning from his wounds, he worked out his own explanation in regard to the murder mystery. He hadn't the slightest doubt but that Cranston had killed Hildreth to prevent his testimony from reaching the courts below. Of course, any other member of the arson ring of hillmen might have been the murderer; yet Dan was inclined to believe that Cranston, the leader of the gang, usually preferred to do such dangerous work as this himself. If it were true, somewhere on that tree-clad ridge clues would be left. Moreover, it was wholly possible that the written testimony Hildreth must have gathered had never been found or destroyed. Dan didn't want the aid of the courts to find these clues. He wanted to work out the case himself. It resolved itself into a simple matter of vengeance: Dan had his debt to pay, and he wanted to bring Cranston to ruin by his own hand alone.

While it was true that he took rather more than the casual interest that most citizens feel in the destruction of the forest by wanton fire, and had an actual sense of duty to do all that he could to stop the activities of the arson ring, his motives, stripped and bare, were really not utilitarian. He had no particular interest in Hildreth's case. He remembered him simply as one of Cranston's disreputable gang, a poacher and a fire bug himself. When all is said and done, it remained really a personal issue between Dan and Cranston. And personal issues are frowned upon by law and society. Civilization has tolled up from the darkness in a great measure to get away from them. But human nature remains distressingly the same, and Dan's desire to pay his debt was a distinctly human emotion. Some time a breed will live upon the earth that can get clear away from personal vengeance—from that age-old code of the hills that demands a blow for a blow and a life for a life—but the time is not yet. And after all, by all the standards of men as men, not as read in idealistic philosophies, Dan's debt was entirely real. By the light held high by his ancestors, he could not turn his other cheek.

Just as soon as he was able he went back to the scene of the murder. He didn't know when the snow would come to cover what evidence there was. It threatened every hour. Every wind promised it. The air was sharp and cold, and no drop of rain could fall through it without crystallizing into snow. The deer had all gone and the burrowing people had sought their holes. The bees worked no more in the winter flowers. Of all the greater forest creatures only the wolves and the bear remained—the former because their fear of men would not permit them to go down to the lower hills, and the latter because of his knowledge that when food became scarce he could always burrow in the snow. No bear goes into hibernation from choice. Wise old bachelor, he much prefers to keep just as late hours as he can—as long as the eating places in the berry thickets remain open. The cougars had all gone down with the deer, the migratory birds had departed, and even the squirrels were in hiding.

The scene didn't offer much in the way of clues. Of the body itself only a white heap of bones remained, for many and terrible had been the agents at work upon them. The clothes, however, particularly the coat, were practically intact. Gripping himself, Dan thrust his fingers into its pockets, then into the pockets of the shirt and trousers. All paper that would in any way serve to identify the murdered man, or tell what his purpose had been in journeying down the trail the night of the murder had been removed. Only one explanation presented itself. Cranston had come before him and searched the body himself.

Dan looked about for tracks, and he was considerably surprised to find the blurred, indistinct imprint of a shoe other than his own. He hadn't the least hope that the tracks themselves would offer a clue to a detective. They were too dim for that. The surprising fact was that since the murder had been committed immediately before the fall rains, the water had not completely washed them out. The only possibility remaining was that Cranston had returned to the body after the week's interval. The track had been dimmed by the lighter rains that had fallen since.

But yet it was entirely to be expected that the examination of the body would be an afterthought on Cranston's part. Possibly at first his only thought was to kill and, following the prompting that has sent so many murderers to the gallows, he had afterward returned to the scene of the crime to destroy any clues he might have left and to search the body for any evidence against the arson ring.

Dan's next thought was to follow along the trail and find Cranston's ambush. Of course it would be in the direction of the settlement from the body, as the bullet had entered from the front. He found it hard to believe that Hildreth had fallen in the exact spot where the body lay. Men journeying at night keep to the trail, and the white heap itself was fully forty feet back from the trail in the thickets. Perhaps Cranston had dragged it there to hide it from the sight of anyone who might pass along the lonely trail again; and it was a remote possibility that Whispermouth, coming in the night, had tugged it into the thickets for dreadful purposes of his own. Likely the shot was fired when Hildreth was in an open place on the trail; and Dan searched for the ambush with this conclusion in mind. He walked back, looking for a thicket from which such a spot would be visible. Something over fifty yards down he found it; and he knew it by the empty brass rifle cartridge that lay half buried in the wet leaves.

The shell was of the same caliber as Cranston's rifle. Dan's hand shook as he put it in his pocket.

Encouraged by this amazing find, he turned up the trail toward Hildreth's cabin. It might be possible, he thought, that Hildreth had left some of his testimony—perhaps such rudely scrawled letters as Cranston had written him—in some forgotten drawer in his hut. It was but a short walk for Dan's hardened legs, and he made it before mid-afternoon.

The search itself was wholly without result. But because he had time to think as he climbed the ridge, because as he strode along beneath that wintry sky he had a chance to consider every detail of the case, he was able to start out on a new tack when, just before sunset, he returned to the body. This new train of thought had as its basis that Cranston's shot had not been deadly at once; that, wounded, Hildreth had himself crawled into the thickets where Whispermouth had found him. And that meant that he had to enlarge his search for such documents as Hildreth had carried to include all the territory between the trail and the location of the body.

It was possibly a distance of forty feet, and getting down on his hands and knees, Dan looked for any break in the shrubbery that would indicate the path that the wounded Hildreth had taken. And it was ten minutes well rewarded, as far as clearing up certain details of the crime. His senses had been trained and sharpened by his months in the wilderness, and he was able to back-track the wounded man from the skeleton clear to the clearing on the trail where he had first fallen. But as no clues presented themselves, he started to turn home.

He walked twelve feet, then turned back. Out of the corner of his eye it seemed to him that he had caught a flash of white, near the end of a great, dead log beside the path that the wounded Hildreth had taken. For a moment he searched in vain. Evidently a yellow leaf had deceived him. Once more he retraced his steps, trying to find the position from which his eyes had caught the glimpse of white. Then he divined straight for the rotten end of the log.

Valuable to Science.
The telescope gives enlarged views of distant objects, the microscope shows what is almost in contact with its lens, and by giving a means of making intermediate observations the modifications of the Davon microscope have proven a boon to the naturalist. With great depth of focus and a large field of view, the short focus type, for example, has a working distance of 10 to 18 inches, and magnifies 15 to 35 diameters. An adjustable rubber-tipped rod serves as a rest to support the instrument at the desired height for studying such objects as insects, plants and rocks.

A large proportion of our troubles is caused by too much bone in the head and not enough in the back.—Columbus (S. O.) Record.

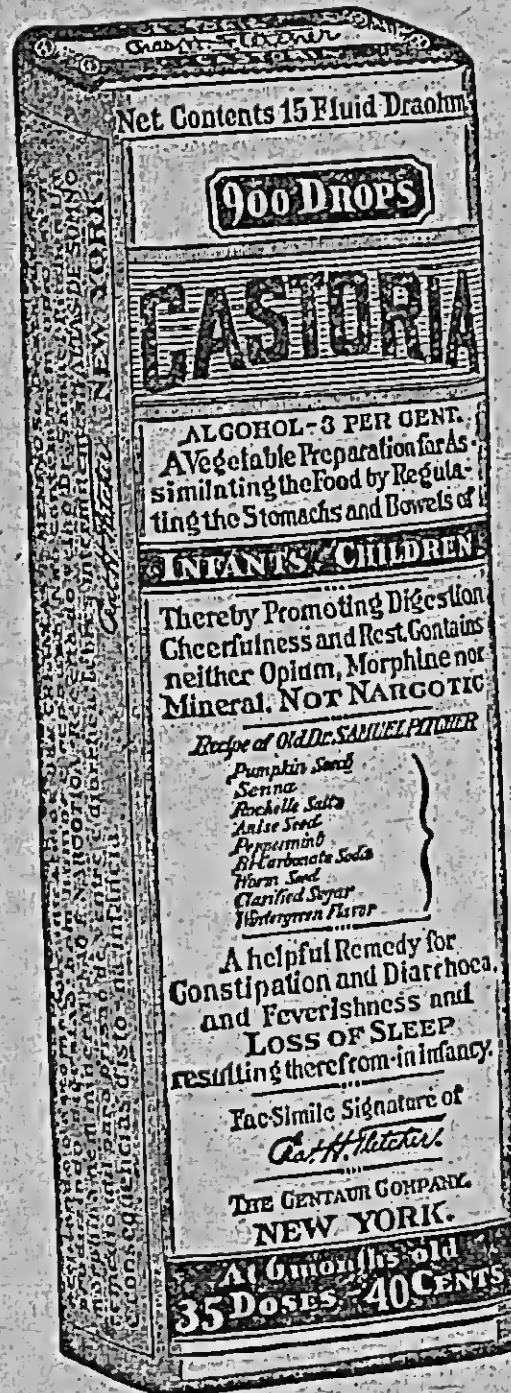

Are You Human?

A little baby. A little child. Don't they appeal to you? Doesn't your heart yearn to pick them up, to cuddle them close to you, to shield them from all harm? sure it does else you're not human. Being human you love them. Their very helplessness makes you reach out in all your strength to aid them. In health there's no flower so beautiful. In illness there's no sight so black.

Save them then. Use every precaution. Take no chance.

When sickness comes, as sickness will, remember it's just a baby, just a child and if the Physician isn't at hand don't try some remedy that you may have around the house for your own use.

Fletcher's Castoria was made especially for babies' ills and you can use it with perfect safety as any doctor will tell you. Keep it in the house.

Fletcher's
CASTORIA

Do the People Know?

Do you know why you are asked to call for Fletcher's Castoria when you want a child's remedy? why you must insist on Fletcher's? For years we have been explaining how the popularity of Fletcher's Castoria has brought out innumerable imitations, substitutes and counterfeits.

To protect the babies; to shield the homes and in defense of generations to come we appeal to the better judgment of parents to insist on having Fletcher's Castoria when in need of a child's medicine. And remember above all things that a child's medicine is made for children—a medicine prepared for grown-ups is not interchangeable. A baby's food for a baby. And a baby's medicine is just as essential for the baby.

The Castoria Recipe (it's on every wrapper) has been prepared by the same hands in the same manner for so many years that the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher and perfection in the product are synonymous.

A Windfall.
A couple of Chicago youths met on the street one day when one made the following announcement:
"Well, Harry Harkins' uncle has just died and left him a lot of money. Harry always said that his ship would come in some day."
"Yea," said the other youth, "but he didn't expect an heirship."

CUSTOMS FIFTY YEARS AGO

Who among us would say to-day, "I never use a Dentifrice, I never have!"
Yet fifty years ago, odd as it may seem, not one person in 1,000 used a Dentifrice—or even a tooth brush.

So to-day, after more than 30 years of persistent publicity of Allen's Foot-Ease, the Antiseptic Powder for the Feet, not many well-turned-out people care to compare "You know I never have to use a Powder for the Feet!"
More than One Million five hundred thousand pounds of Powder for the Feet were used by our Army and Navy during the war.

The reason is this: Increasing and confining the feet in Leather or Canvas Shoes is bound to create friction, more or less. Allen's Foot-Ease removes the friction from the shoes, and freshens the feet. It is this friction which causes smarting, calluses, corns and bunions. You know what friction does to your motor-car axle. Why not remove it from your footbed by Shaking into your Shoes to-day, Allen's Foot-Ease, the cleanly, wholesome, healing, Antiseptic powder? Get the habit, as millions now have it.

"Yes, I do," exclaimed Mr. Cumrox. "In classical music the members of the orchestra sit still and in jazz they jump all over the platform."

His Busy Day.
A solemn-faced individual wandered into the office of Mr. Dubwite, who was up to his eyes in work.
"My brother," said the solemn visitor, "I come to you with a message."
"Tried it to one of my clerks," answered Mr. Dubwite, as his pen continued to trace his signature at the bottom of business letters. "I'll sign for it and bring it to my attention if it contains anything that—ahem—requires my attention."—Paul Cook, in the Birmingham Age-Herald.

Are You All Worn Out?

Do you suffer daily backache and stabbing pains—feel worn out and dispirited? You shouldn't. You want to be well and the best way to get well is to find what is making you feel so badly. You should look, then, to your kidneys. When the kidneys are weak you suffer backache, rheumatic pains and urinary irregularities; your head aches, you are tired, nervous and depressed. Help the weakened kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have helped thousands. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

An Illinois Case

W. F. O'Connell, Esq., Stephenston, Ill., says: "My back was lame and sore across my kidneys. I was unable to bend and after I had been sitting for awhile I could hardly get up. A friend recommended Doan's Kidney Pills so I bought and used a box of them. They entirely removed the pains from my back and I have had no trouble since."

County Not to Hire

Motorcycle Police

The finance committee of the county board of supervisors at a meeting Saturday vetoed employment by Sheriff Green of three motorcycle speed cops to patrol county roads.

It had been supposed that fines imposed as a result of speed violations could be used to pay salaries of the three officers.

When State's Attorney Smith was asked for an opinion on the proposition he held that the money received from the fines cannot be turned over to the sheriff to be used in paying the salaries of the motorcycle policemen, but must be turned over to the road and bridge fund of the county.

This would make it necessary to take the salaries of the motorcycle cops out of the general fund and the finance committee believed this inadvisable.

Ford Burns, But Owner Knows it Not

The latest Ford story comes from Augusta, Ga. A Ford was standing in front of a fashionable hotel on Peachtree street, says the Daily Chronicle, "it caught fire and six fire companies came and put it out, and went back to their respective station houses. Again it caught fire and the fire companies came a second time; put it out and returned to their stations. Then the owner of the Ford came out of the hotel, cranked up, got in, and rode away."

Draping a pulpit desk with the flag, it being held in place by a Bible, is permissible.

Fordson Pulls Fire Engine

A Fordson tractor, rubber tire equipped, is being used by the city of Albany, Ore., for pulling its fire engine. The tractor is said to make between fifteen and twenty miles an hour. When the Ford camera man was in Albany recently, he asked permission to procure a photograph of the Fordson and fire engine. The mayor had the schools dismissed, declared a holiday, and had the fire department pull its equipment into Main street for photographing.

Remembered Goldfish in Will.

There have been many number of instances where money has been left to animals, and in some cases these wills have been upheld by the courts. Much attention was attracted to the will of a woman who left $70 a year for the maintenance of three goldfish. That there might be no misunderstanding she described them as follows: "One is bigger than the other two, and these latter are to be easily recognized, as one is fat and the other lean." She also made provision for flowers to be placed on the graves of the goldfish.

Charity Begins at Home, But This Is Not Charity

Decoration Day Antioch saw one of the largest crowds in its history. Next week the biggest holiday of our calendar will be here. As it comes on a Monday there will be a three-day holiday for many people.

These people, mostly from the city, will seek the open country and thousands will come to the lake region.

Antioch, the key city to the lakes, should take it upon itself to accommodate some of the visitors and as there are many homes in this town with spare rooms that could be utilized, The Antioch News offers its services free as a medium for placing the strangers for the holidays.

Phone the News if you have a spare room for the holidays and let the city folks and their children enjoy a little fresh air instead of having to go back to the crowded city to sleep.

INDIANS SELLING DEER

Fashion for Brides' Leggings Among Them the Cause.

The time-honored fashion of buckskin leggings for Yankina Indian brides has reduced the number of deer in the Cascade mountains in alarming proportions.

This is the warning statement given out by State Game Warden C. W. Darwin of Washington.

According to tradition, it requires three deer skins to make the proper kind of leggings for a belle of the tribe who is about to wed.

Darwin has investigated and found that there are now an average of 100 weddings each year in the Yankina tribe. In and out of season deer have dwindled rapidly in that part of the state where Yankina Indians range and fish or hunt.

It is reported that when deer cannot be found on the reservation, the Indians have some method of going into the surrounding deer country and driving them back to their own lands.

The state game warden intends to enter into a conference with the big chiefs in order to induce the Indians to change their custom from deer skins to shark skins or cloth.

The custom of the Yankina Indians is one followed by other Pacific Coast tribes. The bride is supposed to wear the wedding leggings until they are worn out. To wear them a long time is an omen of happiness and prosperity in the new home.

RHINE YANKS WIN PLAUDITS

Occupational Force Best for Size in World's History.

COULD MOVE IN 24 HOURS

Military Men of the Allied, Neutral and Former Enemy Nations Loud in Their Praises of American Forces—Send Delegations to Coblenz to Find Out How It Is Done—Is Real Army in Full Scale of the Term—Inspected by Swiss.

A complete outfit, a miniature army equipped with all necessary services, capable of taking the field at 24 hours' notice without the assistance of any outside elements and one of the best military units ever organized in the world's history of armies—such is the description that military men of the allied, neutral and former enemy nations apply to the American army of occupation as it is constituted today.

That the efficiency of the training system of the American forces in Germany, the excellence of their equipment and their faultless military bearing are generally recognized throughout Europe is shown by the fact that missions from various countries have either visited Coblenz during the past few months or have applied for permission to come to this base and get first-hand knowledge of how it is done.

Inspected by Swiss Officers.

A few weeks ago the chief of staff of the Swiss army, accompanied by several officers, spent a week in Coblenz as the guest of General Allen, the American commander, attended inspections, visited the barracks, reviewed the troops and returned to Berne to tell the officers of the Swiss army that the American army on the Rhine was "the most up-to-date, the best equipped and the best looking military outfit of all the armies of the world."

A commission from the Netherlands made a similar visit and was equally favorably impressed and now the Finnish government has asked permission to send a commission to Coblenz.

Should circumstances require the American army on the Rhine to move against an enemy or to occupy further territory 10,000 infantrymen composed of the First and Second brigades would furnish the bulk of the fighting force.

Their advance would be guarded against surprises and ambush by 800 cavalry and 15 airplanes, which would do the scouting before the moving infantry. Three trained pilots are available for each plane in case of airman meeting with accidents.

One thousand field engineers, serving eight batteries of light guns, would be on hand to supply a barrage should it become necessary.

Coblenz Would Serve as Base.

Three hundred men of the signal corps battalion would look after telephone and telegraph communications, with the base at Coblenz. The railway engineers' battalion, which is receiving constant practical training on a little branch line on the right bank of the Rhine, which they are operating, would, with the assistance of the motor transports corps, attend to the service of supplies of the expeditionary force.

The engineers' first battalion would throw pontoon bridges over such streams as were traversed in the advance. Six ambulance companies, assisted by a medical corps of 600, establishing field hospitals, would give first aid to the wounded before their evacuation to the base hospital.

THIS MAN DREADED TO SEE NIGHT COME

Was So Restless He Couldn't Sleep and Daylight Was Always Welcome.

"With the exception of a little milk toast, which comprised my diet for more than eight weeks, I could not eat anything," said Capt. Geo. W. Womble, residing at 105 Jennings St., Knoxville, Tenn., a highly respected citizen of that city.

"I am now able," continued Captain Womble, "after taking two bottles of Tanlac, to eat practically anything. I had a bad form of stomach and intestinal trouble for a long time and for months my condition had been such that I suffered agony. I got so I could not eat the simplest food. I tried doctor after doctor and all kinds of medicine, but nothing that was prescribed for me seemed to do me any good. I had a terrible pain in my breast just over my heart and for weeks and weeks I got no relief.

"I finally got so nervous that I actually dreaded to see night come, as I could not sleep, and was always so restless that I would rejoice to see daylight come. I was also constipated all of the time. In fact, life seemed a burden and I was so miserable that I was almost on the verge of despair. Several of my neighbors told me about Tanlac and advised me to try it.

"I am personally acquainted with Mr. Dan M. Chambliss, of the firm of Kohlman & Chambliss and when I told him of my condition and how I suffered he advised me to begin taking Tanlac without delay and that it had relieved hundreds of the best people in Knoxville. Since taking this medicine I actually feel like I had been made all over again with the youth, energy and ambition of a sixteen-year-old boy."

Declarations of Independence

THE MECKLENBURG COUNTY COURT HOUSE, WITH DECLARATION MOUNTAIN

By JOHN DICKINSON SHERMAN.

HERE is of course but one Declaration of Independence—the Declaration of Independence we celebrate on the Fourth of July. It makes no difference that Richard Henry Lee's resolution "That these united colonies are and of right ought to be, free and independent states—" was introduced in congress June 7, 1776; that it was adopted July 2, and that the document itself was not made public until July 5, and was not signed by the members of congress until August 2. It was on July 4, 1776, that the vote on the Declaration itself was taken, and the document ordered "authenticated and printed." So the Fourth of July it is—and ever shall be.

Nevertheless, there are other Declarations, and some of them come pretty near being Declarations of Independence, except that they were not adopted by congress. The truth is that independence was in the air for some time before July 4, 1776. The leaders preferred to say that they were "petitioners in arms," even after Lexington and Concord and Bunker Hill, and many of them doubtless had no determination for independence. But the people in many localities were ripe for independence. So it is not to be wondered that some of them made declarations.

One of the earliest of these Declarations was that of the people of Mendon, Mass., March 1, 1773. It speaks for itself, and here it is:

"That all men have naturally an equal right to life, liberty and property.

"That all just and lawful government must originate in the free consent of the people.

"That the good, happiness and safety of the people is the great end of civil government.

"That a principle of self preservation, being duly planted by the God of Nature in every human breast, it is necessary, not only to the well-being of the individual, but also to the order of the universe, as attraction and cohesion are to the preservation of material bodies and the order of the natural world.

"That a voluntary renunciation of any power or privileges included in or necessarily connected with a principle of self preservation is manifestly acting counter to the will of the great Author of Nature, the Supreme Legislator, that a right to liberty and property is absolutely inalienable.

"That the claim of the parliament of Great Britain to the power of legislation for the colonies in all cases whatsoever is abhorrent to the spirit and genius of the British Constitution, to the letter of our charter and to the most obvious principles of reason and to the essential natural rights given us by God Almighty; and, finally,

"That the introduction of standing armies in a free country in time of peace, without the consent of the people, is a violation of their rights as free men."

Then there is the Declaration of the people of Hanna's Town, May 10, 1775. On that day the men of that portion of the colony of Pennsylvania lying west of Laurel Mountain and embraced in the present limits of the county of Westmoreland, then, and for long afterwards claimed by Virginia to be within the limits of Augusta county, in the Old Dominion, assembled at Hanna's Town, then the seat of justice, to take counsel on the situation. The first two paragraphs of the document adopted are as follows:

"At a general meeting of the inhabitants of Westmoreland county, held at Hanna's Town, on May 10, 1775, for taking into consideration the very alarming situation of the country occasioned by the dispute with Great Britain, resolved unanimously, that the parliament of Great Britain by several late acts has declared the inhabitants of Massachusetts Bay to be in rebellion; and the ministry, by endeavoring to enforce said acts, has attempted to reduce the said inhabitants to a more wretched state of slavery than ever before existed in any country; not content with thus violating their constitutional and cherished privileges, they would strip them of their rights of humanity, exposing their lives to the wanton and unpunishable sport of a licentious soldiery and depriving them of the very means of subsistence.

"Resolved, unanimously, That there is no reason to doubt but the same system of tyranny and oppression will, should it meet with success in Massachusetts, be extended to other parts of America; it is therefore become the indispensable duty of every American, of every man who has any love for his country, or any bowels for posterity, by every means which God has put in his power, to resist and oppose the execution of it; that for us we will be ready to oppose it with our lives and fortunes. And the better to enable us to accomplish it we will immediately form ourselves into a military body to consist of companies, to be made up out of the several townships, under the following association, which is declared to be the Association of Westmoreland County."

And, finally, there is the famous so-called "Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence" adopted at Charlotte, Mecklenburg county, North Carolina, May 20, 1775, of which the first three resolutions are as follows:

"Resolved, That whosoever directly or indirectly, abetted, or in any way, form or manner, countenanced the unchartered and dangerous invasion of our rights, as claimed by Great Britain, is an enemy to this country, to America and to the inherent and inalienable rights of man.

"Resolved, That we, the citizens of Mecklenburg county, do hereby dissolve the political bonds which have connected us to the mother country, and hereby absolve ourselves from all allegiance to the British crown, and to all political connection, contract or association with that nation, who has wantonly trampled on our rights and inhumanly shed the blood of American patriots at Lexington.

"Resolved, That we do hereby declare ourselves a free and independent people, and of right ought to be a sovereign and self-governing association, under the control of no power other than that of our God and the general government of the congress; to the maintenance of which independence we solemnly pledge to each other our mutual co-operation, our lives, our fortunes, and our most sacred honor."

Bats Breed in Cave

In a mountain near Montalban, Luzon, Philippine Islands, there is a large cavern, with many branching chambers, and a central dome 200 feet in height, perforating the mountain top, from which, in December last, an American officer saw issue a solid column of bats, which flew rapidly, in a straight line, for 15 minutes, disappearing over a mountain range in the direction of Manila, without a single bat having left the column, says the Christian Science Monitor. American engineers stationed there told the officer that the flight of the bats had occurred at practically the same time each day during five years. From other sources it was learned that the phenomenon had been observed for at least 30 years.

Indian Anesthetics

While Indians have no anesthetics, properly speaking, their constant use of "cocoon" creates insensibility. They always apply this plant to wounds, bruises and contusions for healing purposes, and, as it certainly tends to deaden pain if not to eliminate it, they unconsciously employ an anesthetic. It is extremely difficult to obtain information from Indians regarding tripling, either merely because of their dislike of white men and their dread of interference and punishment, or because they associate "magic" with the practice and therefore think it must be protected by profound secrecy.

The Mecklenburg convention was called for May 10. Its original purpose was to pronounce the annulment of all laws and commissions in consequence of the king's address of February declaring the colonies in a state of rebellion; and to make provision for a temporary form of government. "Until instructions from the provincial congress regulating the jurisprudence of the province shall provide otherwise, or the legislative body of Great Britain resigns its unjust and arbitrary pretensions with respect to America." In this expectation an elaborate set of resolutions had been prepared.

Curiously enough, this Mecklenburg Declaration did not become generally known till 1810, forty-four years later, and then through publication in the Raleigh Register. Its publication caused an enormous stir, and began a controversy that may be said to be yet going on, inasmuch as some historians still refuse to accept the genuineness of the document. In 1810 Jefferson and John Adams were both old and testy. Adams said, in so many words, that Jefferson evidently had plagiarized. Jefferson angrily retorted that in his belief the document was spurious.

The controversy over the genuineness of the Mecklenburg Declaration immediately became fast and furious. North Carolina finally took a hand in it, and in 1831 its legislature appointed a committee of investigation. This committee reported that the document was genuine. Accordingly, May 20th was made a state holiday, which is celebrated as the "Anniversary of the Signing of the Mecklenburg Declaration." In 1898 in Charlotte, was dedicated a monument in commemoration of the signing of the Mecklenburg Declaration.

The historians have been busy all these years, and little by little the case of the Mecklenburgers has been built up, until now it is generally accepted.

The contract of government signed in 1620 in the cabin of the Mayflower in Massachusetts Bay may be said in a sense to be the first Declaration of Independence, out of which grew the Declaration of Independence of 1776.

ORDERS PAY CUT ON 210 ROADS

Federal Rail Labor Board Decreases 12 Per Cent Reduction on All Big Lines.

SAVING OF $400,000,000

New Wage Schedule Effective July 1—All Class 1 Employees Hit by New Ruling—Unions Expected to Accept It.

Chicago, June 20.—The United States railroad labor board extended its wage reduction order, effective July 1, to practically every large railroad in the country. No change from the average 12 per cent reduction granted 104 carriers on June 1 was made by the decision. The board's order covers 210 roads.

The new wage decision of the United States railroad labor board will make a reality of the estimated $400,000,000 annual savings expected when the board's 12 per cent cut, effective July 1, is applied to all employees on all railroads known as class 1 carriers. The decision, drawn up as an addendum to the wage reduction order of June 1, was made public here. It adds practically every railroad in class 1 division to the original list of 104 roads authorized to make the 12 per cent reduction.

When the reduction order was issued, it was estimated that, if applied to all employees on all class 1 roads, it would lop approximately $400,000,000 from the country's railroad labor bill. The new decision will make this cut possible, by ordering reduced wages for employees not included in the original case.

Immediately following the announcement of the board's wage cut on June 1, roads from every section of the country poured in their applications to the labor board for authority to make similar reductions. A hearing set for June 8 included a total of 101 roads and in the next two weeks 101 more submissions were made and included in a hearing for June 20. A few roads which had not included all classes of employees in their first petitions for reductions came in with the remaining classes in the last hearing.

Many of the roads which asked reductions for only a part of their employees at the original hearing in May came back with applications to cover all employees in these two later hearings. Virtually every railroad in the country affected by the labor board's $800,000,000 wage award of July, 1920, was included in one or more of the three hearings.

Following the 12 per cent reduction, which was generally unsatisfactory to the roads, the carriers returned to the board with added insistence that the 1920 wage award be wiped out. The board, however, was not inclined to change its scale of reductions determined in the June 1 decision and merely added to that decision employees involved in the subsequent hearings.

At the two June hearings the roads, for the most part, contented themselves with reiterating the evidence presented in May. Their arguments consisted chiefly of cost-of-living statistics and comparison of railroad wages with those in outside industries. The employees took up other factors laid down by the transportation act to be considered in the determination of just and reasonable wages. Hazards of employment, the living wage and similar lines of evidence were introduced in an effort to prevent any cut in wages.

While no definite returns have been announced from the referendum being taken by all the railway unions on acceptance or rejection of the 12 per cent cut, it was expected that conferences here on July 1 would agree to accept the board's decision without any interruption of traffic.

Naval Attache at Paris Will Be Reminded If He Has Been Correctly Quoted.

Washington, June 20.—Rear Admiral Thomas P. McGruder, United States naval attache at Paris, will be publicly reprimanded if his speech in Paris was correctly quoted by L'Humanite Libre.

While this was stated emphatically at the Navy department, it was quite evident that Secretary Denby believes Admiral McGruder was misquoted when he was made to say:

"Whatever comes, the United States will always come to the aid of France if France should be attacked. Our ambassador could not tell you that, but I can. My words do not need to be diplomatic."

AN OPEN LETTER TO WOMEN

Mrs. Little Tells How She Suffered and How Finally Cured

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I was not able to do my housework and had to lie down most of the time and felt bad in my left side. My monthly periods were irregular, sometimes five or seven months apart and when they did appear would last for two weeks and were very painful. I was sick for about a year and a half and doctored but without any improvement."

A neighbor recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to me, and the second day after I started taking it I began to feel better and I kept on taking it for seven months. Now I keep house and perform all my household duties. You can use these facts as you please and I will recommend Vegetable Compound to everyone who suffers as I did."

—Mrs. J. S. LITTLE, 3465 Livingston St., Philadelphia, Pa.

How much harder the daily tasks of a woman become when she suffers from such distressing symptoms and weakness as did Mrs. Little. No woman should allow herself to get into such a condition, because such troubles may be speedily overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for more than forty years has been restoring American women to health.
